

TWAS Sixteenth General Conference

21–24 November 2022

Basic Sciences for Evidence-Based Decision-Making and Sustainable Development in the Global South

The United Nations General Assembly proclaimed 2022 the International Year of Basic Sciences for Sustainable Development.

Online event hosted by
Zhejiang University, Hangzhou, China

Programme Structure

(as of 20 September 2022)

Hangzhou, Zhejiang, China time (GMT +8)

Monday, 21 November 2022

19.00–19.50	Opening Ceremony and Presentation of Recognitions
19.50–20.10	Presentation of Awards, Medals and Certificates Presentation of TYAN Executive Committee recognition
20.10–20.15	Presentation of gift to host country
20.15–21.00	Keynote Lecture 1 on Conference Theme
21.00–21.45	Keynote Lecture 2 on Conference Theme
21.45–00.45	TWAS 30th General Meeting Closed session for TWAS Fellows, Young Affiliates and Alumni

Tuesday, 22 November 2022

19.00–21.00	Ministerial Session on Basic Sciences for Evidence-Based Decision-Making and Sustainable Development in the Global South
21.00–23.10	Symposium 1 Basic Sciences: Challenges and Sustainable Development
23.10–00.20	Symposium 2 A journey through TWAS Fellowships Programme: success stories

Wednesday, 23 November 2022

19.00–19.40	TWAS-Lenovo Science Award Lecture
19.40–21.45	Medal Lectures

Thursday, 24 November 2022

16.00–16.45	TWAS-Abdus Salam Medal Lecture
16.45–18.45	Symposium 3 Basic Research Advances SDGs in China
18.45–20.00	Break
20.00–20.30	Induction ceremony TWAS Fellows elected in 2022 Young Affiliates and refugee scientists appointed in 2022
20.30–21.15	Closing Ceremony